

Chemical Engineering Leadership Seminar Series

From Benson Hall to Boeing: A Chemical Engineer's Journey

Jamie Hoffnauer Chakrabarty

BS '85

Manager, Boeing Research & Technology

Wednesday, October 21, 2015

Lecture: 2:30-3:30 p.m., PAA A110

Reception at 3:30 p.m. in Benson Lobby

Abstract

In her 2015 Lecture Series Presentation, Jamie will present a timeline of her career at Boeing, highlights and challenges from each of her assignments, and general advice to move toward personal success.

Speaker Biography

Jamie Chakrabarty is a manager in Boeing Research and Technology, Chemical Technology. She graduated from the University of Washington with a BS in Chemical Engineering. During her Boeing career, she has held positions in Quality Assurance Research and Development as a chemical research engineer, Manufacturing Research and Development as a factory support engineer, Chemical Technology Paints and Coatings as a research engineer, and various management positions within Chemical Technology.

Jamie has two children, Tira and Kiran. Jamie, Tira and Kiran love to travel, and participate in multiple school activities and park league sports. The family resides in Kent, Washington.